MELISSA DUSSENBURY

FOUNDER
ALL THE BRILLIANTS

Just as we know where our food comes from and who made our clothes, why not jewelry? Consumers are familiar with the words "ethical" and "sustainable", but responsible sourcing is a more meaningful goal because this encompasses what is good for people, the environment, and the viability of a thriving local economy - ideally achieved through vertical integration.

The jewelry you choose can create positive social impact and align with your values.

THANK YOU TO OUR SPONSOR:

MARIE-CÉLINE PIEDNOIR

COMMUNICATIONS AND IMPACT
SEALEGACY

I started my career in Marketing and Communications, first in the Luxury industry (I quickly realized it was not for me) and then in the Sports industry (I loved empowering people through sports but in the end, I was still working for a big corporation). In 2019, I decided to follow my gut and use my expertise to help NGOs. I entered the Ocean Conservation world and since then, I learn something every single day and feel useful. I worked for different organizations as a consultant and I am now mainly working with SeaLegacy.
